A long story - we registered a lot of "Shell" names, but there are always some, including various .org, .co etc variants that we didn't , and the Donovans got this one. We challenged it, but alas they won .... even if they had lost, they would just have chosen a name like 'IhateShell.com' or whatever, so the end result would have been pretty much the same ....

Cheers

Thanks - just out of interest, how did he secure the website name?
